

Mandolin

Moist

here she comes in candlelight setting like a full moon over summer's eyes in the colden light where water's gone and the water says what water will be done downstream and out of town floating like a quick-forced scream's surrendering and i called out her name when the elevator came but it's much too late to be the samedown down never come again overthrusted driving rain down down all the way up and she's running where the river takes hertook your love into the street cover of the long tall grass of ecstasy but the city's got to be my love and i don't know where the river takes you i remember hollywood battery of lonesome girls who felt so good i swore on her name when the elevator came that the doors would close on all the blamedown down never come again overthrusted driving rain
down down all the way up
and she's running where the river takes her down down never come again into the breach she felt the same down down all the way up and she's running where the river takes hertore me through the world lost the point of it put the past away again had to find that water to be right but in spite of it put the past away meets the light of dayhere she comes in candlelight setting like a full moon over summer's eyes where the cold lime like a water gun
and the water says what water will be done takes a stream to centre street floating like a quick-forced scream's surrendering
and i called out her name when the elevator came but it's much too late to take the blamedown down never come again overthrusted driving rain

down down all the way up
and she's running where the river takes her
down down never come again into the breach she fell the same
down down all the way up
and she's running where the river takes her running where that river takes her running where that river takes her down

Songwriters

USHER, DAVID/MAKOWY, MARK ANDREW/PEARCE, JEFFREY HOWARD Published by Lyrics © EMI Music Publishing Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>