Knew Your Name

Thief Club

It's been awhile, so how are things?
Last time we talked, but mostly screamed I'm sorry if I seem a bit surprised to see you haven't turned to stone
And I know what's done is done It's in the past, and we've moved on I heard that you skipped town,
Got lost and never found
At least a boy can dream

Like maybe you'd walk into oncoming traffic Maybe you'd choke on some lie that you told Maybe you'll drown in a strong undercurrent, or die burning bridges alone

I wish I never knew your name, your face
I'd be better off without the way your taste
never left my mouth
And all your friends I hate can dig a hole to Hell,
and wait for you to make it home

So take your guilt and memories
Keep smoking reds and think of me
I should've had enough the first time we broke up Now I can't stop wishing

That maybe you'd fall from a ten story building, or break your own neck twisting words like you do Maybe you'll die isolated and lonely Nothing left by the time they find you

I wish I never knew your name, your face
I'd be better off without the way your taste
never left my mouth
And all your friends I hate can dig a hole to Hell,
and wait for you to make it home
I wish I never knew your name

I'd blame you to death

I'd blame you to death

I wish I never knew your name, your face (Your name, your face)
The way you taste (the way you taste)
All your fucking friends I hate can dig a hole to hell
And wait for you to make it home

I wish I never knew your name, your face
I'd be better off without the way your taste
never left my mouth
And all your friends I hate can dig a hole to Hell,
and wait for you to make it home
I wish I never knew your name
