

Queen Anne's Lace

Sorority Noise

I wrote you a book of poems, but you forgot to take it home, so if you're leaving, let me know, because you're the only home I have. I'm taking all the book I own, and putting them on a shelf.
So I can read to you each night, before you throw yourself away. I'm not saying that I'm right, I only want to say good night.
I'm not perfect, that I'm sure,
I only want to be your cure.
