

The Prophet

Yes

Long ago a tall man told a tale of yesterday,
Searching for the truth to life and not for just a way.
Finding pleasure from this house his ears, they did obey;
In his life a moment's pleasure, never to delay. He was lost and in his trust he found a new meaning;
Seeing the things in different lights his life was redeemed. Words of peace will fill his mind and change his way of life;
Peaceful meetings with his heart have made him more alive.
Meeting wise old women on the cliffs of life itself;
Asking not for personal meaning, more for just himself. Soon we'll be as he proclaimed in a new way of living;
Take the things you need in life but remember the giving.
