

Midnight Mystery Girl

Astorian Stigmata

Oh mirror mirror on my wall
I think your a liar
But I don't mind today
This worlds a pretty place
But I've met some broken people
And I hope they find their way
It's all alright with me

But you, you don't know
How your darkness brings the daylight joy
And you, you don't know
How I feel

And when the world decides it's had enough
And the sky turns black
She'll be right next to me
And when her shadow bites me too hard
It'll be just fine
Cause it's all alright with me

But you, you don't know
How your darkness brings the daylight joy
And you, you don't know
How I feel

She's got a dark soul
And it lights up my world
With shades of black
She's Shinning Inside Me
And she's got a little home
At the end of the world
Where the angels dare not go
(That's alright with me)

But you, you don't know
How your darkness brings the daylight joy
And you, you don't know
How I feel

So I wait (All night)

Cause there's a fire burning in my chest (sometimes)
And there's a beauty building in my head (sometimes)
And there's a shadow standing next to me
And it waits(looks) - for(like) you
