

China Plates

â€œChina Platesâ€•

Jess Chizuk

China plates and dinner dates,
You look wonderful tonight.
Paid vacations, medication,
is this supposed to feel right?

I got student loans, I got aching bones,
when did seventeen disappear?

They say just buy a white dress, build your own nest,
stay the course, donâ€™t you fear.

Tell me where did I go wrong in finding the place where I can lay with fate?
I need winding, open highways
I donâ€™t want these china plates.

We buy coffee tables, and clothing labels,
showing strangers that we can.
Iâ€™ve lost in each election, Iâ€™ve lost my discretion, Iâ€™m as lost as I have ever been.

So tell me where did I go wrong in finding
the place where I can lay with fate?
I need winding, open highways,
I donâ€™t want these china plates

So mind the white lines, save for the stop signs, nothingâ€™s standing in the way.
Shiny things, and diamond rings,
could never buy me anyway

Tell me where did I go wrong in finding
the place where I can lay with fate?
I need winding, open highways,
I donâ€™t want these china plates,
I donâ€™t want these china plates.
