Love Is Gonna Break Through

Chris Rice

Hear a newborn baby cry
Hear the farmers pray for rain
One more soldier gives his life
A homeless man begs for change
But change won't come easily
What does this have to do with me?And my heart pounds with a thunder
And I stop and wonder
What should we do with life's surprises?
(Everyday the sun rises on us)Like a swing set in a graveyard
Like a bloom in the desert sands
(Look at my tremblin' hands)'Cause it hits me like lightning
That love must keep fighting
And somehow, every timeLove is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break throughWorld inside a clear blue sky
Teeming with humanity
Tears and laughter intertwine
Our comedies and tragedies
And history is a runaway, but not so far
That love can't find and saveAnd my heart pounds with a thunder
And I stop and wonder
What should we do with life's surprises?
(Everyday the sun rises on us)Like a swing set in a graveyard
Like a bloom in the desert sands
(Look at my tremblin' hands)'Cause it hits me like lightning
That love must keep fighting
And somehow, every timeLove is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break throughIt takes my breath, it's come to this
We all bleed red, you can't resist
The changing wind, the roaring tide
C'mon, get on the winning sideLove is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through
Love is gonna break through

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/