100 Years Too Late

David Lee Murphy

(David Lee Murphy/Dobie Gray)When the sun is dawnin' and he's just gettin' up
Starin' out over the mornin' through the steam off his coffee cup
He thinks about a woman whose love he still holds dear
A sweetheart he kept hangin' on for way too many years
It could've been so different with a family and a wife was crossed between his feelings and that Oklahoma skyAnother time and in anoth

But he was crossed between his feelings and that Oklahoma skyAnother time and in another place He might have rode with Jesse James

And though he rides he can't out run his fate
'Cause he was born 100 years too lateIt's hard to imagine another world out there
As he alys beside a campfire up in only God knows where
But he feels the day approachin' when the kind of life he's known
Will only be in stories and sung about in songsAnother time and in another place
He might have rode with Jesse James

And though he rides he can't out run his fate

'Cause he was born 100 years too lateAnd he wouldn't trade one sleepless night beneath the pourin' rain If he had it all to do over again he wouldn't change a thingAnother time and in another place

> He might have rode with Jesse James And though he rides he can't out run his fate 'Cause he was born 100 years too late
