Fall to Sleep

The Wild Reeds

We rise up late again
The mornings when the truth really seeps in We're all just trying to get by
Rushing to our 9 to 5sWe're living at the top of the night
Feet up against the window as we take a drive
Staring up at stars, I'm losing sense of the time
Not worried about the morning lightStarting to see the morning light
Fall to sleep, hold on to something sweet
It's the only place where you can hide
From your own conscious mindThe gaslight is on again
Scrap the bottom of my purse to try and fill it
And I know that I'll be alright
If I can just make it to my 9 to 5All your friends tell you that you'll be fine
You're strong and they're not worried, it's a matter of time
But I'm worried about myself
And I'm worried about my mental healthFall to sleep, hold on to something sweet
It's the only place where you can hide
From your own conscious mind
The hardest part is getting out
Of the traps we set ourselves
When courage is a gamble and the future is a bet
I got too much down on who I was
And not enough on who I am
