Anesthetic

Into It. Over It.

Your place or mine?
My reflection in the window multiplied
Conveniently misplacing
The steps that I've been taking
Carefully curating
A lifeIs the bed half empty or half full?
Not that I should apologize
If it weren't my own life
I've got the piece of mind to die alone
For some fate I can make my own
Never up to date
You see some things never change
Not for lack of aiming
Fundamentals never swaying
But doubt shoots down the reasons in my wayIs the bed half empty or half full?
Not that I should apologize
If it weren't my own life
I've got the piece of mind to die alone
For some fate I can make my own
So, my place or mine?
So, my place or mine?
So, my place or mine?
(Conveniently replacing)
(The steps that I've been taking)
So, my place or mine?
(Conveniently replacing)
(The steps that I've been taking)
