

West of Sadness

O. Martin

This is a road
Oh, let's start walking
I don't know where to start
But I just felt like talking Oh, the cannons of war has been a warning
I see blood in the eyes
In the eyes of the dawning West of West of sadness

Maybe
we'll find happiness
Oh, this road is long
Compared to a story
And I once read a book
But you thought it was boring
So you walked to the sea
And to a harbour
And you watched golden boats as they float on water We sail west of West of sadness

Maybe
we'll find happiness Oh, any love that you seek will never satisfy your heart Any love that you seek
will never satisfy your heart
Love, love, love, love, love
Love, love, love, love, love
Love, love, love, love, love oh
Love, love, love, love, love But maybe we'll find love
We sail west of love Maybe we'll find Oh if this was a road
Then I'd really start walking
But I don't know where to start
I just felt like talking
