New Year's Resolution

The Limousines

It was already New Year's Eve again
And we were living other people's lives
Letting days go by
We were cold and disconnected
We were helplessly
Watching everything from the outside
And when we tried to change the channel
None of the buttons worked
And every passing minute was another reminder
Of just how much we could hurtFreezing on the rooftop
Of our building bathed in
Rich purple after midnight sky
We wasted the first few hours
Of a brand new year
Wishing we could flyWe tapped on the glass and laughed to ourselves
Thinking how much have we let just pass us by?
We tapped on the glass and we laughed to ourselves...
Can't believe we've wasted so much time
Wishing we could flyUp there on the rooftop was an ocean
Waves of baby-blue California morning sky
We made our resolution for our brand new year:
No more letting days go byWe could crash land and burst into flames
We could crash land and burst into flames
We could crash land and burst into flames
It's alright
No more wishing we could flyWe could crash land and burst into flames
We could crash land and burst into flames
We could crash land and burst into flames
It's alright
At least we tried
