Paperback

The Last Sleepless City

And I canâ€™t break this habit
I canâ€™t tell you whatâ€™s wrong
I want you to notice
Iâ€™m already gone

I wish I had a dime
For every way you make me feel
I could afford to buy your love back
Or at least pretend that it was real
And after all those fights
I left the truth unsaid
Spent half a million nights
Getting in over my head

Same story written on a different page
Nostalgic for the things I used to hate
Letâ€™s be honest with ourselves
Things arenâ€™t the way they used to be
When I kiss you goodnight
I know youâ€™ll stare right through me

Push me aside with every word you say
And when I say I love you
You turn the other way
If thatâ€™s the case Iâ€™m lying through my teeth
At least one of us is honest
You never loved me

Why are we still acting like we care?
When you close your eyes at night
Am I still the one that you see there?
After everything Iâ€™ve been through Youâ€™d think that Iâ€™d be used to this
If never does get easier
But Iâ€™m learning how to live with it

Iâ€™ve crossed the lines out of this life Iâ€™ve found
Iâ€™ve got a lot of things to say
But the words are changing as I write them down
And I have to turn another page

And I canâ€™t keep tearing up my heart like this So paper-thin Iâ€™m moving on
So please stop asking me to stay
We both know Iâ€™m already

Lyrics Submitted by R.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/