

Gravestones

Hawthorne Heights

This old place won't be the same
When the gravestones start to sing your name
Got a lot of bad habits on the way to fame
This old place won't be the same
This old place won't be the same
The mad, mad world won't start to spin
Until we learn to speak in unison
Even in church I found a way to sin
The mad, mad world won't start to spin
The mad, mad world won't start to spin
And I don't care anymore
Here we are at the edge of the world
I've got a six-string heart filled with diamonds and pearls
Late night drives, leaving Dayton to God knows where
I don't care
Where we are or where I've been
I've got broken bones, I'm torn from limb to limb
I'd give anything just to see your ghost
As I drive from the east to the west coast
And nothing matters now
I've got no light to guide me home
I'll learn to live without
The name on the gravestone
The days go by, one by one
I scream your name from my lungs
Your spirit's here in these songs
The days go by, one by one
I count the days, one by one
The nights are lost without you here
My God, it's only been a year
Keep waiting for you to reappear
The nights are lost without you here
It's still so strange without you here
And I don't care anymore
Here we are at the edge of the world
I've got a six-string heart filled with diamonds and pearls
Late night drives, leaving Dayton to God knows where
I don't care
Where we are or where I've been
I've got broken bones, I'm torn from limb to limb
I'd give anything just to see your ghost
As I drive from the east to the west coast
And nothing matters now
I've got no light to guide me home
I'll learn to live without
The name on the gravestone

Songwriters

Eran Bucciarelli-tieger; James Thomas II Woodruff; Micah Alan Carli; Matthew Phillip Ridenour
Published by
SAKYAMUNI MUSIC PUBLISHING LLC; ANOTHER VICTORY INC; ABSURD MUSIC

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>