

Building a Better Me

Dogwood

Superficial nature wearing thin
I can't seem to begin
What really do I see
When I stare back at me?As crushing time reveals my foe
Inheriting all woe
Solutions in the past
Conditioned not to askIt's what you're meant to be
Your name and number
Be all that you should be
You will recover things you haven't lost
Because they don't see you like you think they do
Please just become youRelease your fear is what he said
This all came to a head
Feel cheated out of you
Tradition follows throughThough I can't see how this will end
I know that you will always pull me throughIt's what you're meant to be
Your name and number
Be all that you should be
You will recover
Things you haven't lost
Because they don't see you
Like you think they do
Please just become youIt's what you're meant to be
Your name and number
Be all that you should be
You will recover
Things you haven't lost
Because they don't see you
Like you think they do
Please just become youIt's what you're meant to be
Your name and number
Be all that you should be
You will recover
Things you haven't lost
Because they don't see you
Like you think they do
Please just become youMy soul went searching for a cause
But came back empty-handed
The emptiness you see

Building a better me

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>