A Different Road

Kathy Troccoli

I've traveled long, I've traveled hard
And stumbled many times along the way
I've bruised my knees a lot
And turned my back on God and seen His mercyI've been quick to judge and slow to learn
So many times, I've gotten in the way
I think, I know so much
I`ve questioned God enough but still He loves meSo now, I'll walk a different road
I want to see Him there before I even go
I've run ahead and gone too slow
I've got to be still now and wait upon His will now
This time, it's gonna be His timeDon't want to live without the peace
That comes to me when I am by His side
I've known the freedom there
I can't find it anywhere but in Christ JesusSo now, I'll walk a different road
I want to see Him there before I even go
I've run ahead and gone too slow
I've got to be still now and wait upon His will now
This time, it's gonna be His timeI believe He's got a plan
Everything in His time
I may not always understand
Everything in His time, everything in His timeSo now, I'll walk a different road
I want to see Him there before I even go
I've run ahead and gone too slow
I've got to be still now and wait upon His willSo now, I'll walk a different road
I want to see Him there before I even go
I've run ahead and gone too slow
I've got to be still now and wait upon His will now
This time, it's gonna be His timeSo now, I'll walk a different road
(Everything in His time)
I want to see Him there before I even go
(Everything in His time)
So now, I'll walk a different road
It's gonna be, it's gonna be
It's got to be His time, this time
