

Does Your Mother Know

Björn Ulvaeus & Benny Andersson

Does your mother know, you had to go someday?
Does your mother know, that you would grow so fast?
 Anyway, that's all you think about
 You'd call her if you could
 But the letters that you write in the faded winter light
 Just tell her, they tell her
 That you've got ten dollars and you'll be all right
And when you get straight you're gonna come back east some day
 Does your mother know, you had a man in the west?
 Does your mother know, you drove him from your door?
 Anyway that's all you think about
 You'd call her if you could
 Does your mother know, you walked all day in the rain?
 Does your mother know, how deep your love could be?
 Anyway that's all you think about
 You'd call her if you could
 But the letters that you write in the faded winter light
 Just tell her, they tell her
 That you've got ten dollars and your rent costs eight
And when you get straight you're gonna come back east some day
 But the letters that you write in the faded winter light
 Just tell her, they tell her
