Cobra Lucha

The Bronx

Say enough words to make me forget
Until I get dangerous and desperate
I love it when I'm telling myself lies
The good ones that I know I can cashStare at my face until I neglect
Everything I couldn't forgive
Look at the way you make me
Live choking like a fucking kidI rejected faith, I broke a good heart
And I regret love because you told me
I still don't care, I wasn't meant to cover up scars
Built on faultsTo who it concerns consider this
I tried all your cures but I'm still sick
I'm never going to regain senses
I burn another hole in my headRemember the disease you spread
Like addiction that comes in fitsI rejected faith, I broke a good heart
And I regret love because you told me
I still don't care, I wasn't meant to cover up scars
Built on faultsTalk enough words to make me forget
All my dreams are dead
Disguise lack of progressQuit sending me signals for chemicals
Everything I crave is going to kill me
Don't want to be sick
Depression just seems to stickI rejected faith, I broke a good heart
And I regret love because you told me
I still don't care, I wasn't meant to cover up scars
Built on faults
