

Twice As Good

Sara Groves

When I am down and need to cry till morning,
I know just where I am going.
When I'm in need of sweet commiseration
To speak out loud.
Raise a glass to friendship
And to knowing you don't have to go alone.
We'll raise our hearts to share each other's burdens
On this road. Every burden I have carried,
Every joy--it's understood.
Life with you is half as hard,
And twice as good. With my good news you're dancing on the table:
Baby's born, to celebration.
The joy of life, oh what a sweet communion,
Shared with you. Every burden I have carried,
Every joy--it's understood.
Life with you is half as hard,
And twice as good. Every burden I have carried,
Every joy--it's understood.
Life with you is half as hard,
And twice as good. I know we're growing older,
Can you imagine what that will bring?
It's all a mystery to me now,
Except this one thing:
It'll be half as hard, and twice as good.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>