

A Power

How to Dress Well

No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power.

No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power.No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power.

No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power.No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power. (No)

No, I don't have the power

I don't have the power.(And) While I'm here,

standing on this earth, I,

I wanna love.

I don't wanna be remorseless.

I wanna be sympathy.

Yeah I wanna see sympathy.I wanna die a peaceful, quiet, knowing nothing but the silence, the silence of the truth.

The silence of an open face.

(Yeah, yeah, yeah)I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

No, I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.No, I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

No, I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

(Ohhhhhh-waaaohhhh)I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

(No)

I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.No, I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

No, I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

(Yeah, yeah, yeah)But, I wanna close my eyes,

knowing that I saw this rocket teeming with light, and float off to the void at the top of the sky.Just knowing that I loved, then lost, then loved directions,

and then I lived to the highest, of the highest.

Just promise that you'll live like you wanted,

and if I talk tomorrow,

then you'll wake up and hunger for something to fill you;

Take you and hold you, transfix you and change you.

Making you stronger than up in your mouth and the silence screaming and become the pistol meaning the weapon to the serpents and the floor.

(Oh, the floor)I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.

I don't have the power,

I don't have the power.
