Mineral

Biota

Leave us alone, we never harmed you
Leave us alone, we beg you
How could you be so unforgiving?
Without it you see, you won't be living
To see the creator compiled of mineral and seaIf given a voice, we'd lash out at you
If given a choice, we'd educate you
A blossoms remorse could never shine through
The need it attracts when you're given
The choice of becoming what you need to be
A choice of cradling the creator of mineral and seaThe holding of the bones of the treasured
Allows us to peel, somewhat insightful
Of course it should be with due respect
For after allWe never harmed you, we beg you
How could you be so unforgiving?
Without it you see, you won't be living
To see the creator compiled of mineral and seaThe choice of becoming what you need to be
The choice of cradling the creation of mineral and sea
