Sometime To Return

Soul Asylum

I ran away I walked a fine line
Wasting time only to find
You were callin' I think finally
To remind me I am fineWhat you are is what you see
And you see me and we can be Something you can call real we are we are we areDoing the best we can Working without a plan
I'm beginning to understand
Its getting out of handI have seen these closing doors
I've woke up on this floor before
Picked it apart for hours and hours and hours
Of turning, tossing and looking and listening
To you and all the fucked up things you doBut you're doing the best you can
With every grain of sand
Its trickling through your hand
Sayin' catch me if you canIf someday comes early
Comes whipping comes whirling
To take you for all you have learned
The tables are turning
My bridges are burning
My destination sometime to returnThrow away your calendar
And saddle up your salamander
Get up and get down
Ride in to town and look around
Get up and do something
No time to choose it
Do it do it do it do itDoing the best I can,
With or without a plan, I'm taking what I can get,
I haven't seen nothing yet.
If one day you wake up and find what you make up,
Come and get me, come and take me there.Into your illusion, I'll make my intrusion,
Anytime, anyplace, anywhere.
The hour glass is draining fast,
It knows no future holds no past,
And all this to will come to pass
Never, forever, whenever.
