Evelyn Evelyn

Evelyn, Evelyn
Why do we bother to stay?
Why are you running away?
Don't you feel like severing?
Everything's just come together at last
It's broken, I don't want to play We grew up closer than most Closer than anything, closer than anything
Shared our bed and wore the same clothes
Talked about everything, spoke about so many things What shall we wear tonight?
What shall we eat today?
Can we go ice skating?
But we just did that yesterday
Should we be firemen?
Can we be astronauts?
What if they find us?
They're not looking anyway Evelyn, Evelyn
Why do we bother to stay?
Why are you running away?
Don't you feel like severing?
Everything's just come together at last
It's broken, I don't want to play Fill my glass, let's drink a toast
This is our birthday, so why are we weeping?
At your side, I feel like a ghost
I wake up first and I stare at you sleeping What shall we wear tonight?
What shall we eat today?
Do you think I should marry him?
But we just met him yesterday
Should we be movie stars?
Will we be millionaires?
I want to be famous
They're watching us anyway Evelyn, Evelyn
Why do we bother to stay?
Why are you running away?
Don't you feel like severing?
Everything's just come together at last
It's broken, I don't want to play We grew up so very close
A parasite needs a host
I'm only trying to do what is best for us
Well, I never asked for this
