

Same Kind of Broken (feat. Moriah Peters)

Jason Castro

[Featuring: Moriah Peters] So many faces of different colors,
So many stories unfold,
So many places, these streets and numbers,
Yea we're all pieces of a whole big world. We all come alive, we all fall apart,
We all need someone to love us where we are
What if we all took a minute to look at one another
And lay our differences aside
We would find that we are the same kind
The same kind of broken
Yeah, the same kind of broken There's a thousand reasons for how we got here
But only one way to explain
Why it hurts you and why it hurts me too
No matter where you've been it's all the same We all come alive, we all fall apart,
We all need someone to love us where we are
What if we all took a minute to look at one another
And lay our differences aside
We would find that we are the same kind
The same kind of broken All the colors bleed to one
Like a river we all run
Searching for a place that feels like home So let's all take a minute to look at one another
And lay our differences aside
Cause we all come alive and we all come apart
And we all need someone to love us where we are Cause we are the same kind
We are the same kind
Same kind of broken
The same kind of broken
