Spraynard

Are you holding in your pain?
I see you crying trying to forget your name
You work so hard to let things change
But you feel it seeping in - the painIt gets so dark inside that empty home
The heat of their body lights up the room
But they poison the water and say it's all your fault
Close that door behind you and start to walk
We're all so terrified of our own lives
So search for someone else to share the fear that it's probably for nothing and there's no way to tell
It's a strength that's hard to come by
But you can learn how to be alone
You're worth who you are
That's enough to get you home
Your parents said not to stare into the sun
It will leave you blinded and regretting what you've done
He is that burning star up there in the sky begging you to look into his eyes
