Old Relations

Mimes On Rollercoasters

Well it really make you feel, so empty,
to be with people, that you once knew.
The ages turned the years, to decades,
don't you know, that I missed you.
We played as children, never knowing,
how years apart, slip by so fast.
Different lives, brought us different pleasures.
It's tough in knowing, that we can't go back.

Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Echoes of the past.
Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Friends that didn't last.

We played like there was no tomorrow.
Living in the day, that's what was real.
Planning how we'd make the big time,
In our hearts we knew, it was all for fun.
Then we grew apart, and went our own ways,
raised a family. Forged a career.
Different lives, spent on different pleasures.
It's tough in knowing, that we can't go back.

Well it really make you feel, so empty,
to be with people, that you once knew.
Could it be that I have jealous feelings,
or just sad, those days are gone.
I continue searching for the reasons,
My deepest feelings, still haven't found.
And late at night I lie there thinking,
Of time we spend, with old relations.

Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Echoes of the past.
Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Friends that didn't last.

Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Echoes of the past.
Old relations. Old relations.

Old relations. Friends that didn't last.

Old relations. Old relations.
Old relations. Echoes of the past.
