

Everything's So Different Without You

Billy Ocean

I said my heart would never break
I could have tried to meet you half way
But now and then we make mistakes
Oh I should have tried to change your mind, begging you to stay I did all the right things to hurt you
And I stood by watching while you hurt inside
Oh I should have seen it in your eyes
But I didn't realise Thought that I could take losing you, but I just can't make it
I know that I could win, but being alone just won't do
Being on my own, everything's so different without you I made you think you were wrong
I led you to believe in the lie
While I was weak, you were strong
Oh but now you see the change in me, won't you let me try I hope that you're reading my letter
That I'm crying out to you in every line
Tell me how could I have been so blind
Now I need you all the time Thought that I could take losing you, but I just can't make it
I know that I could win, but being alone just won't do
Being on my own, everything's so different without you Thought that I could take the load by myself
Now I know that I need you and no-one else Thought that I could take losing you, but I just can't make it
I know that I could win, but being alone just won't do
Being on my own, everything's so different
Oh, no, no, no, no, no it just won't do
Being on my own, everything's so different without you
I said my heart would never break
