Defeat The Low

By the time you read the words the truth becomes a blur
They push the pencil to the paper to sell lead and you never question what you're fed
Smooth talking rhetoric gets you to forget, and you'll push the slogan until we're dead
The cancer grows, pollutes your head
You can't act appalled because we called you out to your face and we told you the truth
As you consume your daily bread
You can't act appalled because we called you out to your face and we told you to think
Just to breath is not to live when belief is the same as myth
They push the pencil to the paper to sell lead and you never question what you're fed
Smooth talking rhetoric gets you to forget, and you push the slogan until we're dead
The cancer grows, pollutes your mind
You can't act appalled because we called you out to your face and we told you the truth
As you consume your daily wine
You can't act appalled because we called you out to your face and we told you to think
