

Kathleen (Live from Dublin Castle)

Josh Ritter

All the other girls here are stars?you are the Northern Lights
They try to shine in through your curtains you're too close and too bright
They try and they try but everything that they do
Is the ghost of a trace of a pale imitation of youI'll be the one to drive you back home Kathleen
This party is made with the night air and the chance that a smile
Will wind its way from your face to one of the boys in your line
You act like you're hip to their tricks and you're strong
But a virgin Wurlitzer heart never once had a song
I'll be the one to drive you back home KathleenAnd I'll have you back by break of day
I'm going your way anyway
And if you'd like to come along
I'll be yours for a songI know you are waiting and I know that it is not for me
But I'm here and I'm ready and I've saved you the passenger seat
I won't be your last dance just your last goodnight
Every heart is a package tangled up in knots someone else tied I'll be the one to drive you back home Kathleen
So crawl up your trellis and quietly back into your room
And I'll coast down the length of your drive by the light of the moon
And the next time we meet the new kind of hello
Both our hearts have a secret only both of us know
?bout the night that I drove you back home Kathleen

Songwriters

RITTER, JOSHPublished by

Lyrics Â© Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC, Universal Music Publishing Group, DUCHAMP, INC

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>