Bicentennial Man

Black Lips

I see you looking but I never see you smile
Too bad it's that way and we'll never reconcile
So this is the problem, I think it's plain to see
Just a modern woman, I'm just a modern me
Well, the mind's always happy doing what they can
Well, what can you expect from a bicentennial man?
I said the mind's always happy doing what they can
Well, what can you expect from this bicentennial man?

If I had a penny, two cents I'd give to you
Then I'd wanted to be there and you'd get what worth is due
If you try to test me, I think it's plain to see
You'll be a modern woman, I'll be a modern me
Well, the mind's always happy doing what they can
Well, what can you expect from a bicentennial man?
I said the mind's always happy doing what they can
But what can you expect from this bicentennial man?

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/