Unchained

Hosanna Poetry

Whatever you are chained to
Jesus Christ has come to set you free
Whatever pieces of your past you hold tight to
There's a savior who paid your debt
So you can let those memories be
Whatever you are so used to be defined by
The son of God has come to speak truth to those lies.

And i know all this to be right because he did all that for me.
So what are you chained to?
Are you chained to who you used to be?
The things you did,the facts you hid,
The things the people who look up to you don't know about,
That you have no desire to admit.

Do you live in a prison of secrets?
Are you chained to what people once did to you?
The memories of people that mistreated their power and said some terrible things to you?
Did some terrible things to you?
Did some things that would break God's heart but put the blame back to you?
Do you live in prison of abuse?
Are you chained to what people expect of you?
The expectations that you can't shake?
That everyday steal a piece of you?
Do you live in a prison of not feeling good enough no matter what you do?

Lyrics Submitted by Maryanne Wamuha

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/