

Feel Your Love

Jay Denton

Cold and dark and shapeless, black as night
Pupils dilate cause they are starved for light
Bound I cannot move Days blur to weeks and weeks to years
No escape when I all have is fear
Im facedown on the ground
Whats that distant sound I feel your breathe like the wind through my veins
And I feel your touch like a fire in my heart Could it be my eyes are playing tricks on me
Do I see a hand or is it just a dream
Its just above my skin
This cave is caving in I feel your breathe like the wind in my veins
I feel your touch like a fire in my heart Piercing through the gloom it hurts so much
Tearing through my flesh how deep its dug
The Sunlight pouring through
My feet begin to move And I feel your breathe like a thief in my veins
And I feel your touch like a fire in my heart
And I feel your love
And I feel your love
I feel your breath like the wind in my veins
And I feel your touch like a fire in my heart
And I feel your love
And I feel your love
