

Miracles Happen

Easton Corbin

This mornin' in the paper,
I read about a man who had sacrificed and worked hard all his life.
He said he bought a ticket to some big lottery and just like that, his life changed overnight. Well, as I read about him, a thought occurred to me;
If he could be this lucky,
then i have to believe,(chorus)
She could call from right out of the blue,
Saying boy, I'm still in love with you.
Saying she forgives me for the fool i was
and all i put her through.
If a life can change in just one night,
Who's to say that she can't change her mind.
Miracles happen, everyday. Just last Sunday morning,
I found myself in church.
A place i hadn't been since i was young.
Maybe I was taught too little,
Maybe I was taught too much,
but it's the last place on this Earth I thought I'd come.
And in searching for the answer,
It became so clear to me:
If I could be here praying,
That's all the proof I need.(Chorus)
She could call from right out of the blue,
Saying boy, I'm still in love with you.
Saying she forgives me for the fool I was
And all I put her through.
If a life can change in just one night,
Who's to say that she can't change her mind.
Miracles happen, everyday. Miracles happen, everyday.
