

Gulf Winds

Joan Baez

It's only when the high winds blow that I wish my hair was long
Sailing through the autumn leaves singin' an ancient song
Or falling in love in the streets at night at the edge of a local square
It's only that I'm here tonight thinkin' I was there There's high winds on the pier tonight, my soul departs from me
Striding like Thalia's Ghost south on the murky sea
And into midnight's tapestry she fades, ragged and wild Searching down her ancestry in the costume of a Persian child So Gulf winds bring me flying fish, that shine in the crescent moon
Show me the horizon where the dawn will break anew
And cool me here on this lonely pier, where the heron are flying low
Echo the songs my father knew in the towns of Mexico
When I was young my eyes were wise, my father was good to me
Instead of having a flock of sons he had two other girls and me
And if we'd used our Spanish names, here's the way they'd run Thalia, Margarita and Juanita, I'm the middle one
The screen door kept the Demons in as we moved from town to town
It's hard to be a princess in the States when your skin is brown
And Mama smoothed my worried brow, as I leaned on the kitchen door
"Why do you carry the weight", she said
"Of the world and maybe more"
Gulf winds bring me flying fish, that shine in the crescent moon
Show me the horizon where the dawn will break anew
And cool me here on this lonely pier, where the heron are flying low
Echo the songs my fathers knew in the towns of Mexico
My grandfathers were ministers and it came on down the line
My Father preached in his parents' church
When he was ten years and nine
And Mama dressed in parishioners' clothes and didn't believe in Hell
Her daddy fought the DAR, if he'd lived, I'd have known him well They said, "Go find a Sunday School", we must have tried them all
I never stole from the silver plate, my sisters had more gall One preacher said, "Sing out loud and clear, it's the only life you've got
And the next one said, "Be good on earth You've another life at the feet of God"
And Gulf winds bring me flying fish, that shine in the crescent moon
Show me the horizon where the dawn will break anew
And cool me here on this lonely pier, where the heron are flying low
Echo the songs my fathers knew in the towns of Mexico
My father turned down many a job just to give us something real
It's hard to be a scientist in the States when you've got ideals

And Mama kept the budget book, and she kept the garden too
Bought fish from the man on Thursdays, fed all of us and strangers too But time will pass and so, alas, will most of what we know
Though tonight my memory's eye is clear as the story's being told
And I'll play ball with the underdog and sit with the child who's wrong
Be still when the earth is silent and sing when my strength is gone
So Gulf winds bring me flying fish, that shine in the crescent moon
Show me the horizon where the dawn will break anew
And cool me here on this lonely pier, where the heron are flying low
Echo the songs my father knew in the towns of Mexico
Now Father's going to India, sometime in the fall
They tried to stay together but you just can't do it all
I'll think about him if he goes, there's a little gray in his hair
Though not much 'cause he's Mexican, they don't age, they just prepare
And if he goes to India, I'll miss him most of all
He'll see me in the mudlarks' face, hear me in the beggar's call
And Mama will stay home, I guess, and worry if she did wrong
And I'll say a prayer for both of them and sing them both my song
And Gulf winds bring me flying fish, that shine in the crescent moon
Show me the horizon where the dawn will break anew
And cool me here on this lonely pier, where the heron are flying low
Echo the songs my father knew in the towns of Mexico
