The Heart Won't Be Denied

Colin Devlin

In the last few hours of daylight
As you slipped off your dress
I remembered how it felt
To be alive, to be alive

Then we talked and played some music
It took me by surprise
When you told me I'd be sleeping
With my eyes, open wide

But the heart won't be denied
When it calls you've got to answer
In the end love will decide
The heart won't be denied

On a long forgotten evening
Just before the dawn
I held my breath and prayed,
I prayed that you, might come along

And somehow my prayers were answered
But you're nowhere to be seen
Did you do it just to haunt me?
Show me what, could or could not be?

But the heart won't be denied
When it calls you've got to answer
It won't let those feelings slide
The heart won't be denied

Ancient architecture, I 've studied it a lot
They knew what they were doing
Don't think the heart does not
So I'm telling you to watch out,
Cause you know I'm coming back
And you better be ready,
Prepared for my attack

Cause the heart won't be denied

When it calls you've got to answer
In the end love will decide
The heart won't be denied
The heart won't be denied
The heart won't be denied
