

Chasing the Sun

Billy Talent

We tried to stay young by chasing the sun you blink for too long the swans sing a song and all that I've lost and all that I want don't mean nothing more when you open your eyes and they're gone After all we've been told we're still flesh and bone
and love's worth much more than silver and gold
and all that I've lost and all that I want mean nothing more when you open your eyes and they're gone
And how could it be that we'll never see
The first day of spring and the last of them leaves?
So lost in my mind, I tried to stay strong If wounds heal in time, tell me why it's so hard to move on?
hard to move on?
I'll never move on I curse those mistakes that we'll never make The pictures of trips that we'll never take
And all of these thoughts they keep me awake hang on to your heroes before it's too late cause they come and die when you open your eyes and they're gone someday they're gone someday they're be gone And I'll still be here chasing the sun.
