Let Me Stay

Johanna Warren

Sister where'd you go
I've gone and fallen off my horse again
Summers ending and remembering
Everything we could've been
But those forever feelings never stay
I had a center once she went away

Was the weight of my darkness too great
Call me the light, I will drive those demons away

Brother where'd you go
I've wondered, often lost my way again
My feeding frenzies leave me feeling empty nine times out of ten
Those phosflorescent petals always fade
You said you loved me once but something changed

Was the strain of my sadness to great
Call me the rain, I am here to clean the slate

Brief moments of bravery relapses into cowardess
Glimpses of profunded tea dances with the presipous
Retreating back into your slippery shell
Safe within the dismal diving bell

Well instead of going into hiding
And pushing everyone who loves you away
What if you opened up your doors and let me stay
