

Face Of God

Keith Naylor

I see the trees, theyâ€™re growing in the forest
I feel the wind, on my face
I see the clouds, theyâ€™re painting a picture
I see the face of God

Wonâ€™t you look up and see, life all around you
Wonâ€™t you open your eyes, to the world
Wonâ€™t you free your mind, from the chains that bind you (Chains bind you)
And see the face of God (You will see the face of God)

I see the woman, slowly dying
And I see her husband, sing her songs
And I see a rose, gently lying on her casket
I see the pain of God

Wonâ€™t you look up and see, life all around you
Wonâ€™t you open your eyes, to the world
Wonâ€™t you free your mind, from the pain that binds you (Pain binds you)
And see the face of God (You will see the face of God)

I see a young boy, no longer living
I see his mother, cry out
And I see a pain, that seems to go on forever
I see the tears of God

Wonâ€™t you look up and see, life all around you
Wonâ€™t you open your eyes, to the world
Wonâ€™t you free your mind, from the pain that binds you (Pain binds you)
And see the face of God (You will see the face of God)

I see the ocean waves, as theyâ€™re crashing
I taste the salt, what a breeze!
And I see a setting sun, oh, build an ocean sidewalk
I see the face of God

Wonâ€™t you look up and see, life all around you
Wonâ€™t you open your eyes, to the world
Wonâ€™t you free your mind, from the chains that bind you (Chains bind you)
And see the face of God (You will see the face of God)

Won't you free your mind, from the pain that binds you (Pain binds you)
