

The Fight Song (Crash and Burn)

Mae

The minute you walk into the room
It's like you're headed toward the ring and you're ready to swing
You jump to your conclusions too soon
How can you disagree
Before understanding me?
I've avoided your confrontation too
But here on the inside it's growing and growing And I've been waiting for our worlds to collide
No interest for the other side
I'm wrong
You're wrong
I'm right
When I wait for another fight Do you always have to have the last word?
How does this end for us with just another
Crash and burn So here we meet in the ring
Where no one appreciates and no one's immediate
You play the offender
I take my heat
I feel this strain and the pain and I stay
The way you're looking into me
Has me thinking that you and I will not let this end in a tie Do you always get to have the last word?
How does this end for us with just another
Crash and burn Oh, I know that there can be redemption
It's that I just know that you need my attention
That's for sure
And I think that we can make concession
Patience is such a priceless lesson
Oh, will you learn it with me?
Oh, will you learn it with me?
Oh, will you learn it with me? (Oh, will you ever learn?)
You will never learn) Will you ever learn?
Will you ever learn? Do you always have to have the last word?
You will swing and miss and you'll hit the ground and then you'll Crash and burn Waiting for our worlds to collide
No interest for the other side
I'm wrong,
You're wrong
And I'm right
Getting out before the fight
