God And Me

Kristin Chenoweth

If God and Me
Sat down for tea
I would ask him why he made heart
That can break so easily
If God had time
Would it be a crime
If I said I saw a tiny flaw
In his grand design
I'm sure that the one that made the sunsets and the seasons
Had a real good reasons for the pain of love
And though I hate to bite the hand of the one who made me
If he gave me one little clue to why I lost you
Then maybe I'd be able to move on
If God dropped by
For some homemade pie
I'd serve dessert and ask why it hurts
Every time we hear goodbye
And though I hate to bite the hand of the one who made me
If he gave me one little clue to why I lost you
Then maybe I'd be able to move on
If God and me
Agreed to disagree
I'd admit there's quite a bit of the picture I don't see
Yeah, I'd admit there's quite a bit
Cause he knows more than me
