It Will Rain for a Million Years

Porcupine Tree

I locked myself inside the capsule
And watched the planet slowly turning blue
The lights before me flashed and sparkled
Holding keys to lives I've wandered throughCircuits buzzing, visions passing
Mysterious and cold upon the screen
Glowing, flowing with the currents
Yet never knowing where I've really beenThe floating seeds of timeless travel
Come to rest in planes that don't exist
Visiting worlds of crystal beauty
Offering dreams so very hard to resistI've seen the past, I've seen the future
Beyond dimension and into empty space
Finding questions, never answers
Living time behind another face
