Living Room

emmet swimming

Gave up trying, you've been seen lying around
Hoping someone would tell you where to go
You swing your partner, God's your partner now
And you just dipped him on the floorIf you see me going by Then you've seen me going byI thought life meant you were living
I thought death meant you were dying
Now I sit around and I stare
How dare call this a living room, my living roomGave up caring, you've been seen staring out
Did you expect the, paneling to glow
You're looking for a savior, to take things over now Seems you don't want to tryIf you see me going by
Then you've seen me going byI thought life meant you were living
I thought death meant you were dying
Now I sit around and I stare
How dare call this a living roomI thought time would always be there
I thought my life might go somewhere
Now I sit around it's a big despair
How dare call this a living roomIf you see me going by
Then you've seen me going byI thought life meant you were living
I thought death meant you were dying
Now I sit around and I stare
How dare call this a living roomI thought time would always be there
I thought my life might go somewhere
Now I sit around it's a big despair
How dare call this a living roomI thought life meant you were living
I thought death meant you were dying
Now I sit around and I stare
How dare call this a living roomI thought time would always be there
I thought my life might go somewhere
Now I sit around it's a big despair
How dare call this a living roomI'm sending you a post card
Yeah I'm sending you a postcard
I stare in my living room
