

Grandmother

Nina Lee

Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child feeling small upon the path that I have chosen
Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
there is so much to learn, so much to learn

Can I come to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen

Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
and I have wandered from the path that I was walking
Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
There are so many trails before me

Can I come to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen
Can I run to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen

Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
feeling small upon the path that I have chosen
Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
there is so much to learn, so much to learn

Can I come to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen

Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
and I have wandered from the path that I was walking
Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
There are so many trails before me

Can I come to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen
Can I run to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen
Can I come to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen
Can I run to you, can I lay my burden down
Can I sit by your fire and listen

Teach me Grandmother, for I am just a child
feeling small upon the path that I have chosen

Lyrics Submitted by ROSA

Lyrics provided by <https://damnlyrics.com/>