The Moment Of Reckoning

Insomnium

If I only could I would
Change everythingToday is the day, the moment of reckoning
For too long I've been hiding this truth within my chest
Today is the day when I will come clean
Answer for my deeds and stand up for my faint-heartednessIf I only could I would change everything
Let the suffering be mine and only mine for this timeIn your time of need I betrayed you
When I should have watched over you I walked away
Now there are two straying souls weak in faithIn your time of need I left you
When I should have been strong I turned my back on you
Now there are two straying souls about to breakWhen there now are two of us alone
There's not anymore anyone aloneToday is the day when I will face you at length
You my child have wept enough far too long swallowed your hate
Today is the day when I will promise to myself
Take care from you I've been running away and with for so many yearsIf I only could I would change everything
Let the suffering be mine and only mine for this time
