The Figments

The sun was just an open wound
A bleeding from the sky
As the people gathered round me
Watched as I lay dying
They gape with such confusion
At the smile upon my face
Holes right through my side
And all the lives I saved

If I could die a hero
If I could die a hero
No one would remember
The retched life I leave
I wouldn?t mind dying
Just to sum it up and call it a deed
Lying on the sidewalk
Bleeding like a hero bleeds

Six o?clock on the evening news
It?s time to tell the truth
A cause for admiration flashed
To fifty million rooms
To families all blessing me
For my courageous deed
My debts are all resolved
And my spirit finally free

If I could die a hero
If I could die a hero
No one would remember
The retched life I leave
I wouldn?t mind dying
Just to sum it up and call it a deed
Lying on the sidewalk
Bleeding like a hero bleeds

Up on the strait horse
And as I lay my body out
Like a begger on a cross
Ain?t got no disciples

The only friends I?ve lost
But as they try to circle round
My body with white paint
I might even fool myself
To thinking I?m a saint

I wouldn?t mind dying
Just to sum it up and call it a deed
Lying on the sidewalk
Bleeding like a hero bleeds

I wouldn?t mind dying
Lying on the sidewalk
