The Journey

Funker Vogt

Ten miles above the landscape
I can watch the stars
Power plants and city lights
Illuminate the nightI must keep going on
Now I've reached the sea
I feel that I'm too far above
To hear the torrid wavessuddenly the landscape changes
I fly through buring clouds
One hundred miles an hour
I'm going downunderwater I travel onward
Sinking toward the ocean floor
The light fades out very slowly
On the way down to hell
