

Madison Leigh

Madison Leigh don't stay up to late You've got a train, to catch in the morning She changes channels on her television set and then fumbles around with her hair the next morning we crawl out of bed suit case still packed in the attic the cool rain is falling in threw the window she forgot to close last night and i watch her smile and i see her sleep

i watched her return from the places she dream and i caught her like a bad disease but the winter will cure it, ohh

5 minutes before the train leaves the station the captain yells for all boarding she gave me a kiss and scratches my head turns around, and hands her bags to the man i watch the train as it rolls away from the dock and i stood there crying i got in my car and spent an hour at work i cry some more i told the boss that i had to leave cuz i miss her smile

and i see her sleep

and madison, sweet madison don't hold out on me i smell you with my clothes and girl i taste you when i eat I'm like a blind man whose learning to see for the first time so heal me with your tenderness and heal me with your kiss and my love for you is magic and your love for me is bliss won't you heal me ohh heal me heal meee

lord, lord, lord

cuz i miss your smile and i see you sleep i watched you return from the places you dream and i caught you like a bad disease

uohhh

i walked in your bedroom tried to turn on the fan broke the light switch that was hanging from your ceiling i took a shower and i climbed into bed i smelt the pillow and made believe that you were there
