

Hard Enough (featuring Jenny Lewis)

Brandon Flowers

You let me into your life on a whim
And there was magic and fire in the night
In loving I was just a little boy
I made mistakes that caused you so much pain
All I know is that I'm older now Some people think that it's best to refrain
From the conventions of old-fashioned love
Their hearts are filled with holes and emptiness
They tell themselves that they're too young to settle down
Girl I promise that I'm older now And this has been hard enough on you
I know it's been hard enough on me
Been telling myself that I can roll with the changes And when the water gets high above your head
Darling don't you see,
While this has been hard enough on you
It's been hard enough on me I wasn't looking when we built these walls
Let me spread my dreams at your feet
Let's not let time's bitter flood rise
Before my thoughts begin to run
I think I'm getting older now And this has been hard enough on you
I know it's been hard enough on me
Been telling myself that I can roll with the changes And when the water gets high above your head
Darling don't you see,
While this has been hard enough on you
It's been hard enough on me Can't stand the thought of another, talking to you sweet my dear
Where would I be tonight if you hadn't held me here, in your arms? And this has been hard enough on you
I know it's been hard enough on me
Been telling myself that I can roll with the changes And when the water gets high above your head
Darling don't you see,
While this has been hard enough on you
It's been hard enough on me

Songwriters

BENJAMIN LYSAGHT, BRANDON FLOWERS, DANIEL ROLAND LANOIS, JENNY LEWIS
Published by
Lyrics © Peermusic Publishing, Universal Music Publishing Group, A SIDE MUSIC LLC D/B/A MODERN
WORKS MUSIC PUBLISHING Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.