Fahrenheit

Stephan Bodzin

I can feel it deep inside of me
Something primal the beginnings of a scream
About to let goI can hear it bouncing in my head
Keeps repeating every thought I've ever had Like an echoIf you feel like I feel
And need to come in from the cold
So who cares if it's real
Just pretend there's sand between your toesJust a little bit of Fahrenheit
Just a little bit of heat tonight
As the mercury is rising
Temperature is climbing
I know what's on your mindJust a little bit of Fahrenheit
Just a breath away from paradise
But it's not too hot for dancing
Or for taking chances
So don't apologizeCan you see the lightning in the air?
All the faces and electric atmosphere
They wanna let go'Cause they feel like I feel
And they need to come in from the cold
So who cares if it's real
Just pretend there's sand between your toesJust a little bit of Fahrenheit
Just a little bit of heat tonight
As the mercury is rising
Temperature is climbing
I know what's on your mindJust a little bit of Fahrenheit
Just a breath away from paradise
But it's not too hot for dancing
Or for taking chances
So don't apologizeFor the urge, for the surge
Of the power of inside
Being blinded sometimes
By the lights it's all rightIt's somewhere to go
Where your heart wants to be
Something you need
When you've got to be freeJust a little bit of Fahrenheit
Just a little bit of heat tonight
As the mercury is rising
Temperature is climbing
I know what's on your mindJust a little bit of Fahrenheit

Just a breath away from paradise
But it's not too hot for dancing
Or for taking chances
So don't apologize
