At the Crossroad

Marvin Morrow

At the Crossroads
Marvin Morrow

Everyone that walks the road of life will come to a crossroad
One way itâ€™s wide and trodded down
While the other is seldom used
Which way will you go? Which way will choose?
Down one path youâ€™ll find happiness
Down the other you will lose.

At the crossroads thereâ€™s a Savior with arms open wide
From Calvaryâ€™s hill down through the years
Heâ€™s stood the test of time
Now the choice is yours to make alone
Where will you spend eternity?
At the cross roads Heâ€™s waiting patiently

Just think which path youâ€™re walking down
If you find youâ€™ve went astray
Itâ€™s not too late to turn around
Turn from your sinful ways
Go back to the crossroad, humbly plead your case
There you will find forgiveness and one to lead the way.

At the crossroads thereâ€™s a Savior with arms open wide
From Calvaryâ€™s hill down through the years
Heâ€™s stood the test of time
Now the choice is yours to make alone
Where will you spend eternity?
At the cross roads Heâ€™s waiting patiently

Now the choice is yours to make alone
Where will you spend eternity?
At the cross roads Heâ€™s waiting patiently
